These legends are useful, but not overly apparent that there is a graph filter upon hover.

Looks like the x axis isn't equipped to handle this data. Retool to not show every day or possibly hide the data grid if = last year

One of the confusing aspects (to me) of area charts like this is when there is a lot of A-similar information. In this example it isn't overwhelming, but when are are several elements that are relatively the same size and there is no text-based cue, the user has to hunt to sift through the data.

Open to discussions on how to proceed. Personally, I get more information out of infographics accompanied by text, but I know our screen real estate is limited.

Similar comment to the visual on 404 Breakdown. Cool representation, but we have lots of a-similar sized entries that aren't very distinguishable.
